

Contents

Special Issue: Inclusion and commissions in peace processes

- Introduction to special issue: Inclusion and commissions in peace processes 641
Natascha S Neudorfer and Dawn Walsh
- The peacemaking role of independent commissions: The role of institutional design 654
Natascha S Neudorfer and Dawn Walsh
- Stabilising transitions from conflict: The importance of transitional decision-making procedures 672
Chelsea Johnson
- Inclusive commissions and durable peace: Lessons learned from the Liberia peace processes (1990–1996) and (2003) 687
Esra Cuhadar and Daniel Druckman
- Sins of omission or acts of commission? Explaining the impacts of commissions on lasting peace 705
Nicholas Ross and Alexander Bramble
- Gender quota adoption for commissions in post-conflict societies 720
Dawn Walsh and Emma Murphy
- Explaining changes in women's representation in peace processes: The adoption of a gender quota in the Agreement Monitoring Committee in Mali 736
Jenny Lorentzen
- Subverting elections in Thailand: inclusion and independence in election commission design and practice 751
Petra Alderman
- Independent commission design and inclusion in Northern Ireland: Agonistic versus traditional approaches 767
Emma Murphy